

WHO is committed to building future leaders in public health and WHO's internship programme provides a wide range of opportunities for graduate and postgraduate students to gain insight into and contribute to the work of WHO.

The objectives of the internship programme are to:

provide a framework for assigning students from diverse academic backgrounds to WHO programmes, where their educational experience can be enhanced through practical assignments;

expose students to the work of WHO; and provide WHO programmes with input from students specializing in various fields. Most students are placed in health-related programmes, although other disciplines can be considered as appropriate.
