

Evaluation of different medical waste incinerators in Kabul for Ebola infection control The emergency and humanitarian action programme, together with WHO's communicable disease surveillance and response programme is establishing an Ebola isolation ward in Kabul as a preparedness plan—there are currently no reported Ebola cases in Afghanistan.

The emergency water and sanitation team is providing support for infection control and prevention by installing a proper wastewater disposal system and a safe health care waste management system to avoid the spread of the virus to the environment in the event of hospitalization of an Ebola patient in the isolation unit.
