

The educational development and training programmes provides technical support to countries in the Region by strengthening their national education systems, including schools and universities, and supporting:

evaluation of training programmes in terms of relevance and capacity for scaling up production of health workers strengthening of accreditation mechanisms reform of health sciences training programmes and curricula introduction of innovative training methods, such as distance learning training capacity in countries in terms of training of trainers, teaching equipment and materials, infrastructure investment and development networking and twinning of training institutions, WHO collaborating centres and exchange of expertise within and outside the Region national continuing education processes strategic management of fellowships.

Related programmes

Human resources development

Human resources for health observatory

Nursing and allied health personnel

Thursday 25th of April 2024 11:50:59 PM