

8 March 2012 – International Women's Day is a reminder that universal human rights cannot be achieved without the equal participation, and equal opportunities for development, of women around the world. The Day enables recognition of the contributions of women towards international peace, security and development. It is a Day of solidarity for women and girls equality and a celebration of women and girls achievements.

The theme for International Women's Day 2012 is Empower Rural Women: End Hunger and Poverty.
