WHO EMRO | WHO welcomes US$ 5 million from Kuwait to provide life-saving health services to people in Mosul, Iraq

Baghdad, 12 December 2016—WHO welcomes the generous support of the State of Kuwait through a US$ 5 million donation to help people in the city of Mosul obtain greater medical assistance, particularly the most vulnerable—women, children, the injured and people with special needs.

“We want to help ease the suffering of people living in Mosul, where too many people are in urgent need of health care,” said Kuwait's Permanent Representative to the United Nations and other international organizations in Geneva, Ambassador Jamal Al-Ghunaim. “We will continue working with WHO to help people in places where the need is greatest.”

With military operations continuing in Mosul, WHO is working with national health authorities and health cluster partners to ensure that people with war-related trauma injuries have access to life-saving medical care. WHO estimates that some 40,000 civilians will need trauma care due to Mosul military operations.

“The situation in Mosul is dire, and as we gain access to more people, we are seeing that they are in urgent need of both essential health services and trauma care,” said Altaf Musani, WHO Representative in Iraq. “It is a double burden: treating conflict-related injuries while also providing routine care for women giving birth, for children to be immunized, and for chronic diseases to be managed before they get worse.”

WHO recently delivered life-saving medicines and medical supplies and kits inside Mosul. The shipment which provided materials to treat almost 13,000 patients, include chronic disease medicines, antibiotics and supplies to treat trauma injuries. However, more supplies and services are needed as the conflict continues.

In addition, more than 82,000 people from Mosul and neighbouring areas in Iraq have been displaced as a result of the ongoing conflict since 17 October. As displacement from Mosul continues, the health needs of hundreds of thousands of people will significantly increase, overburdening an already stretched health system, and leaving many men, women and children at risk. WHO and other partners continue to work to meet their needs, but greater support is needed to ensure that health services are scaled up.

Related links
WHO supports overwhelmed primary health care centre in Mosul with lifesaving medicines and medical supplies  4 December 2016

Health needs of displaced, injured from Mosul, Iraq, increasing  29 November 2016

Civilians caught in the cross-fire: WHO supports trauma care services for people in and around Mosul  9 November 2016

WHO and partners gear up to safeguard lives of displaced persons fleeing Mosul  26 October 2016

For more information, please contact:

Ajyal Sultany
Communications Officer
+9647510101469
sultanya@who.int

Saturday 1st of December 2018 11:01:46 AM