Publication date: 2019

Palliative care in most of the Eastern Mediterranean Region remains at an early stage of development, with insufficient strategic planning by governments for palliative care services and only an estimated 5% of adults in need of palliative care in the Region actually receiving it. In order to address the above gaps, WHO, the American University of Beirut (AUB), the Global Palliative Care Program at Massachusetts General Hospital and Harvard Medical School, and the Lebanese nongovernmental organization Balsam, brought together regional and international experts active in the field for the first regional expert meeting on palliative care. The meeting was held in Beirut, Lebanon, on 26 and 27 September 2019. The objectives of the meeting were to take stock of the current situation of palliative care in the Region and exchange country experiences, to develop a draft roadmap for palliative care covering the four domains of WHO model of palliative care and to discuss and agree on the organizational structure of a regional expert network on palliative care, to support the development and implementation of the abovementioned road map.
