

WHO EMRO is committed to providing high-quality, evidence-based information and services to support the health and well-being of people in the Eastern Mediterranean Region.

Our work is guided by the WHO Constitution and the EMRO Strategy, which focus on addressing the health needs of the region through a people-centered, evidence-based approach. We work in partnership with governments, civil society, and other stakeholders to achieve our goals.

Our key areas of focus include: strengthening health systems, promoting health equity, and addressing the burden of non-communicable diseases, communicable diseases, and injuries. We also work to improve the health of vulnerable populations and promote mental health and well-being.

Our work is supported by a strong evidence base and a commitment to transparency and accountability. We regularly update our strategic plan to reflect the changing health needs of the region. In 2024, 49% of our budget was allocated to health systems strengthening, and 51% was allocated to health equity and vulnerable populations.

Our work is also supported by a strong network of partners and stakeholders. We work closely with governments, civil society, and other stakeholders to ensure that our work is relevant and effective. In 2006, WHO EMRO was established as a Regional Office, and since then, we have grown significantly. In 2024, we have 4 Regional Offices and a total of 2006 staff members.
