

The WHO global strategy on reproductive health was introduced to the Member States of the Region at an intercountry meeting in 2007. Follow-up activities have since been undertaken to ensure that country reproductive health strategies are upgraded in line with the strategy.

As a result of these efforts, Afghanistan, Djibouti, Egypt, Jordan, Somalia, South Sudan, Sudan and Yemen have all developed their national strategies and programmes towards achieving universal access to reproductive health.

Thursday 25th of April 2024 05:11:06 PM