

15 December 2021 - Thirty-eight-year-old Wajdi Sweidan, a lab technician at Tarim Hospital, in Hadramout, contracted COVID-19 while he was taking samples from a patient. After recovering, his family tried to convince him to stop working at the centre, but he was determined to help patients get through the “harshes illness” he has ever experienced.

Read the full story

Arabic version fo the story

Wednesday 1st of May 2024 03:42:34 AM