

Mobile clinics donated by WHO is disseminating educational messages on COVID-19 prevention measures and vaccines in Benghazi, Libya. Credit: WHO Libya

21 July 2022- A generous donation from the Government of Norway has enabled the World Health Organization (WHO) to deliver six mobile medical clinics to underserved areas in Libya to support the provision of primary health care (PHC) services to people in need.

The mobile clinics will be deployed to Alshati, Misrata, Tobruk, Benghazi and Tripoli, hosting thousands of internally displaced people and other people in need. The services provided by each clinic include:

Ante- and post-natal care and other reproductive health services.

Routine immunization.

Treatments for patients with common noncommunicable diseases such as hypertension and diabetes.

The clinics will also offer group counseling sessions on health promotion and COVID-19 prevention for up to 120 people a day.

